The Gettysburg Address

_____Number_____ score and _____Number_____ years ago our _____Noun Plural_____ brought forth, on this continent, a new _____Noun_____, conceived in Liberty, and dedicated to the _____Noun_____ that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great _____Adjective_____ war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so _____Adjective_____, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of that war. We have come to _____Verb Base Form_____ a portion of that field, as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and _____Adjective_____ that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we can not _____Verb Base Form_____, we can not _____Verb Base Form_____, we can not hallow, this ground. The _____Adjective_____ men, living and dead, who struggled here, have _____Verb Past Tense_____ it, far above our _____Adjective_____ power to add or detract. The _____Noun_____ will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never _____Verb Base Form_____ what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who _____Verb Past Tense_____ here have thus far so nobly _____Verb Past Tense_____. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion, that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, that this nation, under _____Proper Noun_____, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not _____Verb Base Form_____ from the _____Noun_____.
