A letter from George

Hello my fellow _____ in 2026, it's me, George Washington, the first _____. I am writing from the _____, where I have been secretly living for the past _____ years. I am concerned by the _____ state of affairs in America these days. It seems that your politicians are more concerned with _____ one another than with listening to the people. When we declared our independence from _____, we set forth on a _____ path guided by the voices of everyday _____. If we're going to keep _____, then we need to learn how to respect all _____.

Don't get me wrong; we had plenty of _____ problems in my day, too. Benjamin Franklin once called me a _____ and kicked me in the _____. But at the end of the day, we were able to _____ in harmony. Let us find that _____ spirit once again, or else I'm taking my _____ off the quarter!
