The second strangest night this week

Adjective
Noun Plural Noun
A Game
Something Your Respect
Noun
Adjective
Adjective
Past Tense Verb
Verb
Verb Ending In Ing
Noun
Noun
Medical Condition
Noun
Noun Plural Noun
Type Of Event
State Of Being Verb
Adjective
Adjective
Type Of Location

The second strangest night this week

At this point, Luiz seemed itchy and wasverb ending in ingall the women. With four of them all over him, you'd think he'd be one happy It was quite odd that he kept saying, with ahanging from his mouth, "how much will you girls give me if I made out with Steve tonight?"; We all thought he was joking, but in very little time he yelled "I love you Steve!", but mistakenly, in his drunken stupor, he kissed Nick . Nick was suffering from double and believed at the time he had just received a kiss from one of the women from the group. Tony pulled his pants off, enjoying the hilarity of the situation, but quickly found Luiz's mouth sliding up and down theof his penis.
Thinking back, it's clear at this point that phase 3 of the event had somehow begun, because we found ourselves no longer at the bar, and I still can't recall where we actually were. I should probably assume that we ended up a one our lady-friend's houses, because one of them seemed to have access to a large assortment of sized Plural noun and rubber fists. These girls were into it, whatever Type of event seemed to be taking place only made them more This is where I lost conscious awareness of what was going on. I canno more.

might think that such a Adjective	night would	have been quite	Adjective	_ but the worst of it was waking up with the five of us in a _	Type of location	drenched in ser	men, and cud	dling with 5
Did we ever e	even meet any wo	omen at the bar?
That was the second most strange no	ight I've had all w	/eek.
©2025 WordBlanks.com · All Rights Reserv	/ed.			