torture

gave his name as John Johnson and was first interrogated by members of the King's Privy Chamber, where he remained defiant. When asked by one of the lords what he was doing in possession of so much gunpowder, Fawkes answered that his intention was "to blow you _____ Civilization beggars back to your native mountains ."[37] He identified himself as a _____ Number Catholic from _____ Location in Yorkshire, and gave his father's name as _____ First name and his mother's as _____ Name of a person Jackson. _____ Noun on his body noted by his questioners he explained as the effects of _____ Video game. Fawkes admitted his intention to blow up the House of Lords, and expressed regret at his failure to do so. His _____ Adjective manner earned him the admiration of King James, who described Fawkes as possessing "a _____ Civilization resolution".[38]

James's admiration did not, however, prevent him from ordering on _____ Number _____ Noun that "John Johnson"; be _____ Verb ending in ing to reveal the names of his co-conspirators.[39] He directed that the torture be light at first, referring to the use of manacles, but more severe if necessary, authorising the use of the rack: "the _____ Adverb Tortures are to be first used unto him et sic per gradus ad ima tenditur [and so by degrees proceeding to the worst]."[37][40] Fawkes was transferred to the Tower of London. The King composed a list of questions to be put to "Johnson", such as "as to what he is, For I can never yet hear of any man that knows him", "When and where he learned to speak French?", and "If he was a _____ Civilization who brought him up in it?"[

] The room in which Fawkes was interrogated subsequently became known as the _____ First name

_____Name of a person Room.[42]

Fawkes's signature of "Guido", made soon after his torture, is a barely evident scrawl compared to a later instance. Sir William Waad, Lieutenant of the Tower, supervised the torture and obtained Fawkes's confession. [37] He _____ Verb his prisoner, and found a letter, addressed to Guy Fawkes. To Waad's surprise, "Johnson"; remained silent, revealing nothing about the plot or its authors. [43] On the night of _____ Number November he spoke with Waad, who reported to Salisbury "He [Johnson] told us that since he undertook this action he did every day pray to God he might perform that which might be for the advancement of the Catholic Faith and saving his own soul". According to Waad, Fawkes managed to rest through the night, despite his being warned that he would be interrogated until "I had gotton the inwards secret of his thoughts and all his complices". [44] His composure was broken at some point during the following day. [45] observer Sir Edward Hoby remarked "Since _____ Proper noun _____ being in the Tower, he beginneth to speak English". Fawkes revealed his true identity on 7 November, and told his interrogators that there were five people involved in the plot to _____ Verb _____ the King. He began to reveal their names on 8 November, and told how they intended to place Princess Elizabeth on the throne. His third confession, on 9 November, implicated Francis Tresham. Following the Ridolfi plot of _____ Year _____ prisoners were made to dictate their confessions, before copying and signing them, if they still could.[46] Although it is uncertain if he was subjected to the horrors of the rack, Fawkes's signature, little more than a scrawl, bears testament to the suffering he endured at the hands of his interrogator

The
