I knew we would have more than just a professional relationship

I had just closed on my _____Noun and Chris took me out for a celebratory _____Noun. After a few too many _____Adjective juice glasses of red wine at the old Local 188, we decided we weren't ready to go home. And with the Treasure Chest and Blackstones right around the corner, why would we?! I agreed to go to Blackstones with Chris if he agreed to go sex toy _____Verb ending in ing with me at the Treasure Chest. There are two _____Adjective lessons I learned from this adventure. 1 Don't go sex toy shopping when you're _____State of mind. It's like _____Noun shopping when you're _____Adjective you end with way too much in your cart and 2 A _____Adjective man may not be a _____Adjective woman's best sounding board for sex toys. After much _____Noun and little to no help from the _____Adjective guy behind the counter full of whippets (Lesson 3 might be don't buy your sex toys where _____Verb ending in ing products are sold) I walked out of the Treasure Chest which what affectionately came to be known as The Purple Master-an outrageously _____Adjective and _____Adjective behemoth of an in home entertainment system. The fact that I then _____Past tense verb it around Blackstones all night in its little brown paper bag made the night even more _____Adjective. Oh, that and getting kicked out of Blackstones because Chris practically had a bar fight with some guy who was insulting _____Location and trying to educate Chris about the real estate market here. Needless to say a bond was formed that night that no one shall ever be able to break!
