A Rose for Emily Word Lib- Parts 3 and 4

Emily becomes sick and disappears from the public's view. The town decides to repave the _____Noun and the foreman's name is Homer Barron, a _____Noun. He began to take Sunday rides with Emily. The other women of town disapproved of Emily forgetting "noblesse oblige"; (th obligation of people in a high social position) and people began to call her _____Adjective Emily". Emily goes to the drug store about a year later and asks for _____Noun. When asked for the reason, she refuses to specify, but continues to ask for arsenic, and the pharmacist gives her arsenic "for rats". The townspeople believed that she would kill herself, and the Baptist minister went to _____Verb Emily, but he refused to ever return. Emily orders a _____Adjective toilet seat engraved with Homer Barron's initials and men's _____Noun which leads the people of the town to believe Barron and Emily married; soon after, Barron disappears. Emily again recedes from society for six months, then for seven years gives painting lessons, and then stops. During this time, her taxes were _____Past tense verb. When the town gets a mail service, she refuses to participate by getting a _____Noun. Emily stays in her _____Noun for the most part, unseen by the town, her only company being a _____Noun. She falls ill and dies on a _____Noun on the downstairs floor of her home.
