The Green Shop

One day I went to the _____ Adjective Shop. I was going to buy some plants but when I got there, a person came up to me and asked, 'What plant would you like to buy? We have _____ Plural noun, some _____ Plural noun, and we have some _____ Plural noun.'

'I would like to buy some _____ Plural noun I said. Then the man led me into a room, but it was surprising to see the _____ Plural noun all dead.

Another man came and said, 'We are sorry we forgot to take the _____ Noun out. We also forgot that the _____ Plural noun was all dead and that we forgot to water them.'

'Then, why did you lead me to the _____ Plural noun I said. 'You should've said that the _____ Plural noun was dead.'

'Sorry, I forgot, too,' said the man.

Then I said that I would like to try the Plural noun but then we saw somebody that seemed like a bad kid, and he was messing up all the Plural noun. Then he let some Plural noun out, and the Plural noun ate all the Plural noun. The man said, 'I guess we'll have to Verb some more, but I'll bet you the potatoes are good.'

'Okay,' I said. The man led me into the potato room. I hoped that the potatoes wouldn't be messed up or anything. When we got to the potato room, I thought, 'Well, the garlic wasn't water and the tomatoes were messed up. At least we can have mashed potatoes.' When I Past tense verb them, they were Adjective and I thought, 'I'll never eat mashed potatoes again.'
