Paranormal Activity

Bender, David and Leone, Bruno. Paranormal Phenomena. sunuva: Greenhaven Press Inc.1991 Bendersoffers honest advice on the matter of paranormal phenomena, ghosts, andPlural . In the process, Bender includes that most paranormal encounters can beand also that many people just jump to conclusions when ever they see or hear something out of the normal. But he also says that there are many things that cant be and it is verybecause they all talk about the same thing. So the article is not one side because, it pretty much goes into both sides of the argument and really doesnt lean to one side or the other.
Begley, Sharon and Springton Karon. Why We Believe. Newsweek; 11-3-08 Vol.152 Issue 18, p56-60.

and Sprintons article offers advice on the nature of why we believe in paranormal phenomena. In the article includes the type of paranormal activity people to through and why we believe that it isfrom out of this world. It also talks about theactivity associated with paranormal beliefs. This article is very one sided. It gives many reasons on why people believe in paranormal phenomena and it a lot of things on how that way of thinking could be I believe
