Journey To the Black Lake

One day, there was a Adjective baby born on September Number. His mother and father decided to name him First name after his grandfather. Little did they know that he would soon make history.

As he grew, First name learned more and more about the world around him. One day, when he was seven years old he decided to go on an adventure, to the place he had only heard about in fairy tales - the Black Location. It was said to be nearly Adjective to reach, and First name was Adjective to try, although he knew there was obviously no such thing.

First name began his journey and searched far and wide for the Black Location. He finally found it using his map, but something seemed Adjective realized that he could not see a lake anywhere! 'Where could it be?' he asked himself as he scanned the place for any sign of a lake, but there was none to be found. First name decided to quit his Noun and go back home, but he learned a valuable lesson - don't go searching for something that seems impossible.
