Beneath a Moonless sky

I should have known that you'd be here,

I should have known it all along.

This whole arrangement bears your Noun

you're in each measure of that Noun.

How dare you try and Verb me now, how dare you come invade my life.

Oh Christine, my Christine in that time that the world thought me dead.

My Christine, on that night just before you were Event.

Oh Christine, you came and found where I Past tense verb don't you deny that you did that long ago Time of the day.

That Time of the day.

Once there was a Time of the day

beneath a Adjective sky,

too dark to see a thing

too dark to even try.

I Past tense verb to your side,

to tell you I must go.

I couldn't see your Noun

but sensed you even so.

And I Past tense verb you.

And I Past tense verb you.

And I heard those ravishing refrains.

The music of your pulse.

The singing in your veins.

And I Past tense verb you.

And I _____Past tense verb_____you.

And _____Past tense verb_____you.

And I _____Past tense verb_____you.

And with every breath and every sigh.

I felt no longer _____Adjective_____.

I felt no longer _____Adjective_____.

At last our feelings bared

beneath a _____Adjective_____sky.

And blind in the dark,

as soul gazed into soul;

I looked into your heart and saw you Adjective and Adjective.

Cloaked under the night

with nothing to suppress,

a woman and a Noun

no more and yet no less.

And I Past tense verb you.

And _____you.

And the world around us fell away,

we _____things in the dark,

we never dared to say.

And I _____you.

And I _____you.

And I _____you.

And _____you.

With a need to urgent to deny.

And nothing mattered then except for you and I.

Again and then again,

beneath a Adjective sky.

And when it was done,

before the sun could rise ashamed of what I was afraid to see your eyes.

Pronoun stood while you slept

and whispered a goodbye.

And

slipped into the dark

beneath a Adjective sky.

And I loved you,

yes I loved you.

I'd have followed any where you led.

I woke to swear my love,

and found you gone instead.

And I Past tense verb you.

And I _____Past tense verb_____you.

And I _____Past tense verb_____you.

Yes I _____Past tense verb_____you.

And I had to

both of us knew why.

We both knew why.

And yet I won't _____Past tense verb_____

from now until I die.

The night I can't forget,

beneath a _____Adjective_____sky.

And now?

How could you talk of now for us? There is no Noun.
