Your Star Wars Adventure

Your name is           Your name          . You were born and raised on the planet           Made up planet          . As a child, you were always           Adjective           because your planet was under the clutches of the Empire, or more specifically, Darth           Person you hate          . At the age of           Number           people had to recruit to be stormtroopers.

Living on the same planet is someone your age, called           First name          . You and           Same name           were sometimes friends but most often didn't speak to each other. However, when you both reached that age of           Same number           when you were to recruit as stormtroopers, you became           Adjective           friends.

'Okay, everybody           Same number           years old! You will soon train to be stormtroopers. All of you will be boarding these star shuttles to the planet where you will be taught how to be a stormtrooper!'

You didn't want to serve the Empire. You didn't want to train to become one of their soldiers. You dove under a           Noun           to hide. It was a pretty           Adjective           hiding spot, but you hoped it would work.

          Expression ('whoa!' 'eureka!')          !' you hear. Someone is hiding near you! It is           Same name          

'What are you doing?' you hiss.

'Same as you. Hiding from the imperial army. This hiding place pretty much sucks, but it's the best I could find.'

You both hatch a plan together. You decide to hide from the Imperial _____<sup>Noun</sup> until the last minute. If you can succeed, you may be able to sneak on to the main ship. With no weapons and no _____<sup>Noun</sup> it's a long shot, but it just might work.
